FROM THE EDITORS

The Comparative Civilizations Review will seek to publish reasonably well-written analytic studies and interpretive essays primarily concerned with (1) the comparison of whole civilizations, (2) the development of theories or methods especially useful in comparative civilizational studies, or (3) significant issues in the humanities or the social sciences studied from a comparative civilizational perspective.

By 'a comparative civilizational perspective' we mean (1) the use of evidence from more than one civilization (the various national traditions of the modern West being regarded, in this respect, as constituents of a single civilization) and (2) a method likely to throw new light either on the processes and structures of civilizations or on the problems of interpreting civilizations in diverse natural and analytic languages. A less essential consideration, but highly desirable in civilizational studies, is (3) some degree of incorporation of the perspectives, questions, and methods of both the humanities and the social sciences.

Papers concerned with aspects of civilizational studies other than the analytic or the interpretive, as well as surveys of the literature, working notes, and (with occasional exceptions) book reviews, should be directed to The Comparative Civilizations Bulletin.
