

THE PRESIDENT'S MESSAGE

HISTORY IS WHERE IT'S AT! Or, to put it another way, where it's at, is history. One of the objectives of MPHS is "to gather in conferences and workshops to teach and to learn from each other about Latter-day Saint history in the Pacific." In addition to people, structures and places are important also. We have tried to recognize this by having a conference at Honolulu's beautiful Tabernacle (1985), including a tour of historic Laie (1986), enjoying lovely Kahana (1987), and holding our ninth annual conference at the Hawaii Temple (1988). And in 1989 we'll be having our first Neighbor Island conference on Maui, the island where the real history of the Church in Hawaii really got underway.

Our 1988 conference saw some familiar presenters, some new ones, and a few from the mainland. We had 116 registrants who seemed to thoroughly enjoy themselves. We are always looking for new presenters and would hope there are still more people out there anxious to learn the fascinating history of the Church that is so much a part of our lives. Help them benefit by bringing them along which would strengthen them at the same time it strengthens us.

Thanks for the nucleus of faithful supporters--on the Executive Council and among the membership at large--who have stuck with us over the years. Without you we would have no organization. Keep up the good work!

Mahalo,

Kenneth W. Baldrige
