and Psychotherapists

January 1982 Vol. 8, Issue 1

AMCAP supports the principles of The Church of Jesus Christ of Later-day Saints; however, it is an independent, professional organization which is not sponsored by, nor does it speak for the Church or its leaders.

The purpose of this Association shall be:

- a) To promote fellowship, foster communication, enhance personal and professional development, and promote a forum for counselors and psychotherapists whose common bond is membership in and adherence to the principles and standards of The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints, both in their personal lives and professional practice.
- b) To encourage and support members' efforts actively to promote within their other professional organizations and the society at large, the adoption and maintenance of moral standards and practices that are consistent with gospel principles.

EDITORIAL

We are grateful for the opportunity of bringing this special issue on emotional and sexual intimacy to you and trust that you will find it meaningful and helpful--both personally and in your important and challenging opportunities to serve and bless the lives of others.

Our special thanks are extended to Elder Hugh W. Pinnock for writing his paper especially for inclusion in our Journal. Although his is rightfully the lead article, he did not prepare it as an introduction to the primary subject of this issue.

Appreciation is expressed to our immediate past President, Allen Bergin, for writing the introduction to the emotional and sexual intimacy papers and also to each of the other authors, two of whom, Brothers Vic Brown and Carlfred Broderick, prepared their comments by request especially for this issue.

If you have ideas, theories and/or research findings you would like to share with fellow AMCAP members, please send them. Also please encourage others whom you think have ideas that would be helpful to us to share them. If you desire suggestions on the appropriateness of your ideas for the Journal or how to prepare them for publication, please so request. It is our desire that the Journal not only be a source of ideas for you, but also for you to share your insights with fellow members.

Further, please submit suggestions you have for the improvement of the Journal. Thank you.

BCK, Ed.
