Contributors to this Issue

Karen Lassen is a retired psychotherapist living in Berkeley, California. She spends her time playing the violin, writing articles, and traveling. She has contributed two previous articles to The Bridge, one dealing with the psychology of a mermaid and the other dealing with her mother, who was a Danish Olympic gymnast.

Tom Weber was born in Boise, Idaho in 1946. As a child, he wanted to become a doctor like his father, who practiced medicine for fifty-three years. He received his BA from Brigham Young University in 1970 and his JD from the University of Utah in 1973. He has worked in the fields of law and insurance. After his father's death in 1976, Tom decided to write about his father's life. He is currently working on a sequel to The Christmas Doctor.

Kelsi Vanada is from Denver, Colorado, and is an MFA candidate in poetry at the Iowa Writers' Workshop. She also teaches literature and creative writing at the University of Iowa. Her poems and translations have been published most recently in Prelude, Berfrois, and New Delta Review.

Fred Delcomyn was born in Copenhagen and immigrated with his family to Detroit as a young boy. After his schooling and university work, he undertook graduate training in biology and subsequently took a position on the faculty of the University of Illinois, retiring in 2008. He and his wife currently reside in Urbana, Illinois. Photography and outdoor activities now occupy most of his time.

Lois Christiansen Eagleton grew up in Junction City, Oregon, received a degree in business administration from Oregon State University (it was "college" then), has traveled around the world four times, and lived for a time in Korea and Japan. She worked off and on in the field of accounting and raised four children. In addition to several published articles, she has written one book, For Love of the Land, The Legacy of Mildred Kanipe, a local history. Today she lives on nine acres in the country near Umpqua, Oregon, where she keeps herself busy gardening and playing music with the Oregon Old Time Fiddlers.

James D. (Jim) Iversen is Professor Emeritus of Aerospace Engineering at Iowa State University. He spent three sabbatical periods in Denmark, first at Skibsteknisk Laboratorium (The Danish Maritime Institute) in Kongens Lyngby and two periods at the Geologisk Institut (Institute of Geology) at the University of Aarhus. He has published several articles in The Bridge and served as president of DAHS from 1998 to 2008.
