New Publications

The Diaries of Charles Ora Card: The Utah Years, 1871–1886

Edited by Donald G. Godfrey and Kenneth W. Godfrey

Charles Ora Card's diaries detail the pioneers' attempts to make the desert blossom as a rose, including their work on the Logan Temple and Tabernacle. During this era, the Church faced increasing economic and federal legislative pressures. The records accent the everyday struggles of a people; their leadership, both local and Churchwide; and Card's own capture by U.S. marshals.

Stewardship and the Creation: LDS Perspectives on the Environment

Edited by George B. Handley, Terry B. Ball, and

Steven L. Peck

The essays in this book inspire members to consider carefully their own stewardships in caring for God's creations as well as to create dialogue and find common ground with those of other persuasions. The book reaffirms and develops what previous examinations of our theology and history have repeatedly demonstrated: our religion offers a vital perspective on, and a foundation for, effective environmental stewardship that encompasses the best impulses of both liberal generosity and conservative restraint.

Joseph Smith and the Doctrinal Restoration

“Joseph Smith, the Prophet and Seer of the Lord, has done more, save Jesus only, for the salvation of men in this world, than any other man that ever lived in it” (D&C 135:3). This Sperry Symposium volume focuses on truths restored through the Prophet Joseph Smith. It celebrates his 200th birthday and the 175th anniversary of the Church’s founding.

A Descriptive Bibliography of the Mormon Church, Vol. 2

Peter Crawley

On July 21, 1847, Orson Pratt and Erastus Snow, with one horse between them, paused at the mouth of Emigration Canyon and then made their way into the Great Salt Lake Valley—the first Latter-day Saints to walk on the land that would become their home. This volume tells the story of Latter-day

Saint publishing efforts as the Church settled Utah. It also features detailed descriptions of Orson Pratt’s missionary publications in England and the printed works of missionaries in France, Italy, Denmark, and the Pacific islands. Researchers, librarians, book collectors, and serious students of Mormonism will find this book a valuable reference guide to these early publications.

Pioneers in the Pacific: Memory, History, and Cultural Identity among the Latter-day Saints Edited by Grant Underwood

In this volume, President Gordon B. Hinckley tells inspiring stories of missionaries and members in Australia, Hawaii, New Zealand, Samoa, Tahiti, and Tonga. Elder Glen L. Rudd recalls serving with Matthew Cowley, the “Apostle of the Polynesians,” a man loved for his faith and kindness. Chieko N. Okazaki discusses the need for harmony between gospel principles and human culture. Groundbreaking chapters tell the history of Saints in the islands.

Fire on Ice: The Story of Icelandic Latter-day Saints at Home and Abroad

Fred E. Woods

How did the message of the restored gospel come to Iceland, the land of fire and ice? What made its converts so adventurous to make this lengthy Utah journey by sail, rail, and trail? What challenges did they encounter trying to assimilate into a western American culture? This book provides the answers.

Its publication marks a dual sesquicentennial commemoration: the arrival of the first Icelandic Latter-day Saints in Utah and the earliest settlement of Icelanders in the United States.

Sperry Symposium Classics: The Old Testament

Edited by Paul Y. Hoskisson

Explore the Old Testament as the original testament of the Savior's dealings with humanity. Topics include the law of Moses, the Abrahamic covenant, and the teachings of Isaiah and Elijah. Elder Russell M. Nelson, Robert L. Millet, and others offer scriptural insights in these classic Sperry Symposium addresses.
