From the Editor:

I am very proud and honored to present this semester's newest issue of Intuition. The journal is continually undergoing many changes and improvements, namely operating, editing, and publishing now on Intuition's new website scholarsarchive.byu.edu/intuition. Past publications and current publications are available for download and viewing online for interested persons; readership now spans the entire world! Currently, the Intuition staff and I are also working to publish three issues each year and possibly even more to allow more opportunities for publication to students.

I would like to sincerely thank each and every one of the editorial staff members who gave their time to work on the journal. We had some students who dedicated their time to work on the journal for their capstone credit, and we had others who simply wanted the experience and donated their free time to help with the journal as volunteers. Their careful, consistent, and reliable efforts have made this current publication possible.

I would also like to thank the faculty who donated their time and effort to the journal. We realize that the faculty members are very busy with their teaching, research, and personal lives. We appreciate the time they set apart to give authors of the manuscripts didactic and valuable feedback.

I especially would like to express my personal thanks to Dr. Harold Miller, who is the advisor for the journal. His support, insight, and care have helped us to improve and progress the journal far beyond what we could have done by ourselves.

I hope you enjoy this issue of Intuition!
