

4-2019

Editor's Note

Brian Ridd
brian.ridd94@gmail.com

Brady Earley
bradyearley@gmail.com

Follow this and additional works at: <https://scholarsarchive.byu.edu/byuplr>

Part of the Law Commons

BYU ScholarsArchive Citation

Ridd, Brian and Earley, Brady (2019) "Editor's Note," Brigham Young University Prelaw Review: Vol. 33 , Article 3.
Available at: <https://scholarsarchive.byu.edu/byuplr/vol33/iss1/3>

This Front Matter is brought to you for free and open access by the All Journals at BYU ScholarsArchive. It has been accepted for inclusion in Brigham Young University Prelaw Review by an authorized editor of BYU ScholarsArchive. For more information, please contact scholarsarchive@byu.edu, ellen_amatangelo@byu.edu.

EDITOR IN CHIEF & MANAGING EDITOR'S NOTE

We are both honored and humbled by the privilege to oversee the publication of the 2019 edition of the Brigham Young University Prelaw Review. As new legal issues arise each year, we feel it is essential for students to understand and add their voices to these important questions and debates. We believe the 2019 Prelaw Review staff have met this goal through their hard work and commitment. We feel the innovative claims in each article are capable of enlightening and broadening the reader's perspective. They add to relevant conversations on legal topics ranging from immigration to animus in jurisprudence, from predictive policing to tenant rights and gambling in Esports.

Authors and editors for this year's Prelaw Review were selected in July of 2018. In their applications authors submitted drafts or outlines with proposed arguments and the relevant areas of research. They were later paired with an editor to assist them in the writing process. Then, with the help of their editors, authors spent the next seven months researching, writing, and refining arguments. Throughout this process each team overcame numerous challenges as they worked to improve their arguments. The result is truly a tribute to their desires and vision.

Each team sought the guidance of legal professionals and professors to better understand and address their topics. We wish to extend our heartfelt thanks to everyone who took the time to help lift this journal to a higher plane of quality. We wish to thank Forrest Albiston, Jaden Cowdin, Jason Gardiner, and Paige Herrmann for their efforts in bringing this all together. We are extremely grateful to Kris Tina Carlston, for her time, and for her effort on behalf of this journal. Her ability to balance the demands of life while moving academic projects forward deserves extra recognition. Finally, we wish to thank Laura Bean for formatting each paper prior to publication.

It is with great pleasure we present the 2019 edition of the Brigham Young University Prelaw Review. We wish all those involved the best of luck in their future endeavors and goals.

Brian Ridd
Editor in Chief

Brady Earley
Managing Editor