

Sigma: Journal of Political and International Studies

Volume 40

Article 11

4-2023

End Matter

Follow this and additional works at: <https://scholarsarchive.byu.edu/sigma>

Part of the International and Area Studies Commons, and the Political Science Commons

Recommended Citation

(2023) "End Matter," Sigma: Journal of Political and International Studies: Vol. 40, Article 11.

Available at: <https://scholarsarchive.byu.edu/sigma/vol40/iss1/11>

This End Matter is brought to you for free and open access by the Journals at BYU ScholarsArchive. It has been accepted for inclusion in Sigma: Journal of Political and International Studies by an authorized editor of BYU ScholarsArchive. For more information, please contact ellen_amatangelo@byu.edu.

LEAD EDITOR
Amelia Watterson

EDITOR-IN-CHIEF
Marissa Gerber Pinnock

MANAGING EDITORS
Elle Diether

EDITORIAL BOARD

Laura Andersen
Russel Anderson
Julia Chatterley
Clara Cullen
Belle De La Rosa-Thompson
Alix Hess
Claire Royer
Afton Tingle

FACULTY ADVISOR

Scott Cooper

SPECIAL THANKS TO FACULTY

Michael Barber
Adam Brown
Ray Christensen
Ralph C. Hancock
Chris Karpowitz
Quinn Mecham
Chad Nelson

Sigma: Journal of Political and International Studies is a multidisciplinary publication of student articles on topics in political science and international studies. Sigma addresses topics such as economics, international relations, political science, and area studies. Our aim is to publish the work of diligent students who have fresh policy recommendations and new perspectives to offer, which would otherwise go unnoticed.

Sigma is supported and sponsored by the BYU chapters of the Pi Sigma Alpha (National Political Honor Society) and Sigma Iota Rho (Honor Society for International Studies). Our appreciation for them is manifest in the title for this journal. You may find more information on these organizations at politicalscience.byu.edu/pi-sigma-alpha and kennedy.byu.edu/sir.

We also express our gratitude for the support received for this journal from the Political Science Department and the David M. Kennedy Center for International Studies. Our gratitude also goes to the Kennedy Center communications team for their editorial and graphic design support.