Dartmouth College

CHARLES K. H. CHEN, Far East Specialist, Dartmouth College Library, retired in June 1984. Dartmouth's Oriental Collection is currently administered by Nien Lin Xie, Catalog Technician, and John R. James, Director of Collection Development and Bibliographic Control.

Harvard-Yenching Library

SUNGHA KIM, Assistant Librarian for the Korean collection, twice visited Singapore in 1984 to serve as a consultant on Korean and Japanese materials at the Institute of East Asian Philosophies. The Institute, located on the campus of the National University of Singapore, is an independent organization founded in 1983 for the purpose of promoting research on East Asian philosophy, particularly Confucianism. The Institute is affiliated with the Ministry of Education of the Republic of Singapore and supports the Curriculum Development Institute of Singapore in compiling textbooks on Confucian ethics for the use of high school students.

Mr. Kim advised the Institute on the continuing development of the collection on Confucianism and related topics in its library in both Asian and Western languages.

University of Illinois at Urbana-Champaign

YASUKO MAKINO, Japanese Librarian, has recently completed an extensively revised manuscript of Japan Through Children's Literature (1st edition 1978) which will be published by Greenwood Press late this year.

SACHIE NOGUCHI joined the staff as the Assistant Japanese Librarian last August. A graduate of Keio University majoring in library science, she pursued her advanced studies at the University of British Columbia and McGill University and obtained a master's degree in sociology as well as a professional degree in librarianship. She has had professional experience in Japanese and Canadian libraries prior to her coming to the United States.

KAREN WEI, Assistant Chinese Librarian, is the author of a book entitled Women in China: A Selected and Annotated Bibliography published by Greenwood Press last September. Her work is considered the first book-length publication of its kind.

WILLIAM S. WONG, Asian Librarian, returned briefly to the campus from Taiwan where he was from September through December 1984. With other library colleagues throughout the world, he was a participant in the three-week workshop on Chinese rare books sponsored by the Library Association of the Republic of China. He also offered a series of lectures on Chinese bibliography and library administration at Tamkang University and Fu Jen Catholic University. As a recipient of an Indo-American Fellowship award, he is scheduled to leave for India where he will conduct a study project on Chinese collections in early February. He expects to return from his sabbatical leave in late April.
