Contributors To This Issue

Charles and Edel Berg are life long residents of Enumclaw, Washington. Edel's parents immigrated to the United States in the first decade of this century. "Conversations with Kathryn Sass, an acquaintance first made while wintering in Arizona, led to the discovery of her mother's "Memories."

Donald Iversen is Assistant Professor-Librarian at Rider University, Lawrenceville, New Jersey. He is a graduate of Dana College, the University of Iowa and the University of Wisconsin-Madison.

Rudolf Jensen, a past contributor to The Bridge, is Assistant Professor of English at Grand View College, Des Moines, Iowa and Assistant Editor of the Danish American Heritage Society.

Hazel Rasmussen Morse of Seattle, Washington, believes that "there should be some remembrances of what has gone before to leave with our children and grandchildren." Consequently, she prepared a description of "how my Danish American parents adopted a new country."

John Mark Nielsen, a past contributor to The Bridge, is Professor of English at Dana College, Blair, Nebraska, and Assistant Editor of the Danish American Heritage Society.

Editorial Statement

We offer you three short stories of Carl Hansen in this issue. They have been assigned by David Overmyer, Hansen's former supervisor at the University of Wisconsin, Madison. Hansen's first story, "The Discovery of the New World," is a historical account of the discovery of the Americas. The second story, "The Discovery of the New World," is a historical account of the discovery of the Americas. The third story, "The Discovery of the New World," is a historical account of the discovery of the Americas.

John Mark Nelson, an active member of the Wisconsin Historical Society, is the author of the first story, "The Discovery of the New World." Nelson is a professor of English at Grand View College, Des Moines, Iowa, and a member of the Board of Directors of the Wisconsin Historical Society.

My parents adopted a new course of action to be taken in the future. They decided to adopt a new course of action to be taken in the future. They decided to adopt a new course of action to be taken in the future.
