

Criterion: A Journal of Literary Criticism

Volume 14
Issue 1 Volume 14, Issue 1 (2021) Winter

Article 14

6-20-2021

End Matter

Follow this and additional works at: <https://scholarsarchive.byu.edu/criterion>

Part of the English Language and Literature Commons

BYU ScholarsArchive Citation

(2021) "End Matter," Criterion: A Journal of Literary Criticism: Vol. 14 : Iss. 1 , Article 14.

Available at: <https://scholarsarchive.byu.edu/criterion/vol14/iss1/14>

This End Matter is brought to you for free and open access by the Journals at BYU ScholarsArchive. It has been accepted for inclusion in Criterion: A Journal of Literary Criticism by an authorized editor of BYU ScholarsArchive. For more information, please contact scholarsarchive@byu.edu, ellen_amatangelo@byu.edu.

Contributors

Ryder Seamons is an English and Chinese major from Draper, Utah. He graduated from BYU in December 2020 and will begin BYU Law School in Fall 2021. Ryder is using his free time between graduation and law school to relax, read Dostoevsky, and mountain bike.

Garrett Maxwell is a double major at BYU in Comparative Literature and Middle Eastern Studies / Arabic. He spends his time in search of the sublime and the sacred, whether it be in the mountains and deserts, or in the archives and poets.

Devon Thomas is a senior at BYU studying English, focusing on transnational modernism. She hopes to teach multicultural literature collegiately and begins BYU's Master of Arts in English this fall. She is from Gilbert, Arizona, and adores slam poetry, cats, and true crime shows—and her husband.

Cassidy Crosby is an English major at BYU. She is particularly invested in women's literature and portrayals of women and women's issues throughout literary history. She was born and raised in Cowley, Wyoming, where most of her family still resides. In her free time, she enjoys reading and writing, as one might expect, as well as dancing, listening to music, hiking, and cooking.

Emery Nielson graduated from BYU in December 2020 with a bachelor's degree in English. She grew up in Oregon and enjoys video games, foreign films, and online shopping. She has always admired Edgar Allan Poe, and some of her favorite contemporary authors include Neil Gaiman and Stephen King.

Adelaide Strickland is a fourth-year student at St. Francis Xavier University in Antigonish, Nova Scotia, completing an honours degree in Development Studies with an English Subsidiary. Her research focuses on how small-town art and storytelling projects can build and better communities. Outside of the classroom, Adelaide has been deeply involved in anti-sexual violence activism and will spend the summer co-curating and editing an anthology of stories from fellow activists.

Angela Ricks is an English major at BYU with an interest in editing. She is from Utah and enjoys spending her time biking, reading, baking, and writing.

Kaitlin Hoelzer is a senior at BYU majoring in English and minoring in History and Global Women's Studies. An honors student, Kaitlin enjoys knitting, spending time outside, and playing with her dog. Kaitlin will start a master's program in English at BYU in the spring and plans to pursue a doctorate.

Abby Thatcher is a senior double major studying Interdisciplinary Humanities and English. She enjoys long walks around the pond with Thoreau, whale watching with Melville, and the occasional swinging party with Fitzgerald (Zelda, not Scott). Her research interests include early modern English literature; intersecting paths of gender, race, and class economies; and spectator and spectacle performativity. She has worked with the Humanities Center as an undergraduate fellow and has conducted research on early English and Scottish texts with the aid of a HUM research grant. When not partying like it's 1598, she can be found working on a book of creative nonfiction that she may never finish but finds therapeutic during the pandemic nonetheless.

Emily Stephens is an English major with special interests in rhetoric and British literature. Next year, she will begin a masters degree at BYU in English literature. She is from Connecticut and enjoys singing, playing the guitar, hiking, and reading in her spare time.

Gabriella Schwartz is an English major and Philosophy minor at BYU. She is interested in intersectional and deconstructionist theory along with the overlap between English and philosophy. She is from Utah, where she passes the time by reading, writing, thinking, walking, and of course, appreciating the occasional meme.

Deniz Cansiz is a senior student of English Language and Literature at Çanakkale Onsekiz Mart University with an interest in Postcolonial Studies. He is from Turkey and enjoys musical theatre, baking, reading, and writing in his free time. His novel "Tabuttaki Çivi" is due to come out on June 18, 2021.

