LIBRARIANS

University of Southern California Korean Heritage Library

JOY KIM, Curator of the Korean Heritage Library at the University of Southern California, completed the first Transition to Management program at the University of California at Los Angeles in the fall of 1989. "I got more out of the program than just management skills," Ms. Kim said of the week long program that was designed to assist entry-level librarians of various ethnic backgrounds overcome hidden barriers to advancement and move up to middle management. Transition into Management is an arm of the California State Library's Expanded Minority Recruitment Scholarship Program, begun in 1988, to help ease the shortage of minorities in the field of library science.

Dr. Lee to Complete His Consultancy for INNERTAP

During his consultancy for the International Development Research Centre of Canada last November and December to review the work of the Information Network on New and Renewable Energy Resources and Technologies for Asia and the Pacific (INNERTAP), a regional pilot project sponsored by Unesco, Dr. HWA-WEI LEE, Director of Libraries, Ohio University, was stranded in Manila during the military coup attempt. The mutiny interrupted the final stages of the review. As a result, Dr. Lee is returning to Manila in February this year to complete the assignment which includes a regional meeting with representatives from the six member countries of INNERTAP to discuss his findings and recommendations. The INNERTAP Steering Committee will use these discussions to develop a program for the next three years.
