A Call for Materials

Dr. Stephen P. Halbrook, author of Target Switzerland, is now doing a study of “personal experiences” of rank and file Swiss during World War Two “which in turn express how the nation coped in the war.”

Those given above by Alice Schelbert of Vogorno, Switzerland, indicate the type of data he is interested in. In case you remember specific incidents and experiences and are willing to share them with Dr. Halbrook for potential inclusion in his forthcoming study, please send them to him. “If possible,” he writes, “I would like to receive electronic copies of personal accounts (diskette or e-mail), but just plain paper is fine too. I prefer English (sayings, songs, and the like also need the original German, French, or Italian).”

Please send accounts to:

Dr. H. Dwight Page, Professor of French at Hiwassee College, Madisonville, Tennessee, is preparing an extended essay on Switzerland and the European Union, excerpts of which he will present as a talk on October 6, 2001, at the SAHS Annual Meeting in Washington, DC.

He is especially interested in “newspaper clippings from current Swiss newspapers (or other papers) detailing Swiss activities vis-à-vis the Union.”
