

1-1-1986

Alberta Wheat Pool

Jim Walker

Follow this and additional works at: <https://scholarsarchive.byu.edu/byusq>

Part of the Mormon Studies Commons, and the Religious Education Commons

Recommended Citation

Walker, Jim (1986) "Alberta Wheat Pool," BYU Studies Quarterly. Vol. 26 : Iss. 1 , Article 16.
Available at: <https://scholarsarchive.byu.edu/byusq/vol26/iss1/16>

This Poetry is brought to you for free and open access by the Journals at BYU ScholarsArchive. It has been accepted for inclusion in BYU Studies Quarterly by an authorized editor of BYU ScholarsArchive. For more information, please contact scholarsarchive@byu.edu, ellen_amatangelo@byu.edu.

Alberta Wheat Pool

Grain elevators rise
Against vast prairie sky
Like Royal Grenadiers on watch.
Yet peeling paint, some aging sentinels
Seem rustbound as a dustbowl plow,
Stand single aside weed-filled railways as if forgotten.

In sprouting towns near grainfields thick as porridge
The few new melt pastels into landscape—
Pale green, brilliant orange,
As if a circus or a midway sideshow.

I have spent half a lifetime
Reading their messages,
Measuring journeys by their passing towers,
Longing for their landmarks in the dying dusk.

Such meditations bring to mind
A child's pride in four elevators
Beside our railroad tracks
And endless games of run-sheep-run
Among the boxcars' shadows.

This afternoon, touched by warm Hawaiian rain,
I span the Pacific in an eye blink
To walk once more those rutted roads
And feel the gusting prairie wind
Blow warm mellow of memory
Through my head of half-grey hair.

—Jim Walker