

1-1-1989

Bread and Water

Dennis Clark

Follow this and additional works at: <https://scholarsarchive.byu.edu/byusq>

---

Recommended Citation

Clark, Dennis (1989) "Bread and Water," BYU Studies Quarterly. Vol. 29 : Iss. 1 , Article 5.
Available at: <https://scholarsarchive.byu.edu/byusq/vol29/iss1/5>

This Poetry is brought to you for free and open access by the Journals at BYU ScholarsArchive. It has been accepted for inclusion in BYU Studies Quarterly by an authorized editor of BYU ScholarsArchive. For more information, please contact scholarsarchive@byu.edu, ellen\_amatangelo@byu.edu.

Bread and Water

for Bob Keeler

It sounds like a meal for prisoners, for the condemned
gathered to share their last supper again.
No one to cater,
served by the youngest and rawest of trusties, we eat the repast
rehearsing rituals of sweathouse and bath; facing another six days under sentence of death.

We share the lone swallow and bite as wards of the Church, surviving another week's seizure and search,
purging our throats,
scrubbing the skin of the fruit from our teeth with water in thimbles, and bread broken like flayed, public flesh of a prisoner culled by a crowd's holiday breath.

From the refectory, down the barred passage, we file to our cells
to sleep with the feast, to wake for the walls of commerce, our crassness.
The water, percolating through earth, recharges our aquifers;
the bread, still sweet in the fasting mouth, we hold as our manna until the next sabbath.

—Dennis Clark