

7-1-1995

Mother and Son Discuss Politics

Trenton Hickman

Follow this and additional works at: <https://scholarsarchive.byu.edu/byusq>

Recommended Citation

Hickman, Trenton (1995) "Mother and Son Discuss Politics," BYU Studies Quarterly: Vol. 35 : Iss. 3 , Article 10.
Available at: <https://scholarsarchive.byu.edu/byusq/vol35/iss3/10>

This Poetry is brought to you for free and open access by the All Journals at BYU ScholarsArchive. It has been accepted for inclusion in BYU Studies Quarterly by an authorized editor of BYU ScholarsArchive. For more information, please contact scholarsarchive@byu.edu.

Mother and Son Discuss Politics

The boy who will die watches his mother slap arepas into hot oil. “Mamá, can you hear the Revolution?” the boy asks.

He scratches the back of a mutt
at his feet, throws him a bone.

“Si, hijo,” she mumbles, spinning
the sizzling moons of corn.
The dog cracks his bone, loudly,

pries out the marrow in pieces.
The boy persists. “Will the Revolution change our lives?” He sits on a chair in front of the window. His mother stares at his silhouette in the light.

“Doubtful,” she whispers.

She thinks her son should not ask such questions. She starts to tell him so and then the snicker of bullets.

—Trenton L. Hickman

“Mother and Son Discuss Politics” received honorable mention in the 1995 BYU Studies Poetry Contest.