Review

Disney's newest game, based on Disney Pixar's film Inside Out, is a twist on the classic bubble shooter game. Riley's emotions need to match and sort Riley's memory bubbles, and the player is taken to locations inspired by the film with the help of those emotions. Characters are unlocked as the player progresses through the levels, and each character has power-ups that are unique to him or her. The voices are done by the voice actors from the movie. The game has four different modes and over 125 levels.

Although the app is one of Disney's newest, it offers plenty of content already with an assurance of more levels, locations, and characters in the near future. Occasionally the game does not give the player the right color of thought bubbles that are needed to win the level, but all of the levels can be won without needing to resort to in-app purchases. The colorful images, use of familiar characters and places from the movie, power ups, and challenging levels create a game that is fun for kids and even adults that love Inside Out.
