

Children's Book and Media Review

Volume 37
Issue 8 August 2016

Article 13

2016

Dot.

Kati Penovich

Follow this and additional works at: <https://scholarsarchive.byu.edu/cbmr>

BYU ScholarsArchive Citation

Penovich, Kati (2016) "Dot.," Children's Book and Media Review. Vol. 37 : Iss. 8 , Article 13.
Available at: <https://scholarsarchive.byu.edu/cbmr/vol37/iss8/13>

This Book Review is brought to you for free and open access by the Journals at BYU ScholarsArchive. It has been accepted for inclusion in Children's Book and Media Review by an authorized editor of BYU ScholarsArchive. For more information, please contact scholarsarchive@byu.edu, ellen_amatangelo@byu.edu.

Book Review

Title: Dot.

Author: Randi Zuckerberg

Illustrator: Joe Berger

Reviewer: Kati Penovich

Publisher: Harper

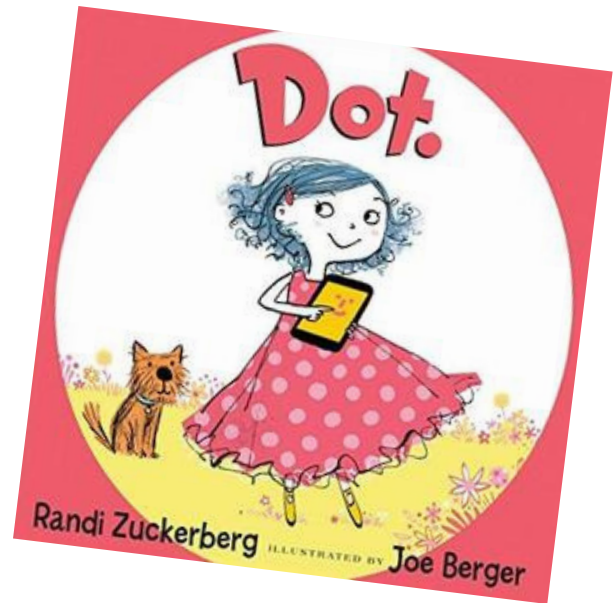

Publication Year: 2013

ISBN: 9780062287519

Number of Pages: 28

Interest Level: Preschool, Primary

Rating: Excellent

Review

Do you know how to tap, to tweet, to tag? Dot does! Dot is a smart young girl who knows her way around computers. She's a pro at surfing, searching, and swiping, and she LOVES to talk. But in her quest to master technology, has she forgotten all about playing outside with her friends? With a little help from her mom, Dot rediscovers her love for the great outdoors and reminds all of us of the importance of recharging with nature and reconnecting with friends.

Dot. is a charming story with a relevant message for all citizens of our high-tech world: go outside and play! The book encourages responsible technology use and outdoor play with vibrant, fun illustrations. Dot's message is one of embracing technology while remembering how great it is to be outside in the fresh air with good friends.