

12-1-2010

City Dog

David J. Passey

Follow this and additional works at: <https://scholarsarchive.byu.edu/byusq>

---

Recommended Citation

Passey, David J. (2010) "City Dog," BYU Studies Quarterly. Vol. 49 : Iss. 4 , Article 10.
Available at: <https://scholarsarchive.byu.edu/byusq/vol49/iss4/10>

This Poetry is brought to you for free and open access by the Journals at BYU ScholarsArchive. It has been accepted for inclusion in BYU Studies Quarterly by an authorized editor of BYU ScholarsArchive. For more information, please contact scholarsarchive@byu.edu, ellen\_amatangelo@byu.edu.

City Dog

The day I die I hope this old yellow dog will slip from my fist like string through a bead

and jog west, tongue out, dim eyes leaping to the distant green and granite face of the mountain that presided over my youth.

This final errand: to shed over seven states,

through days of unslacking hardwoods and humid miles of corn, the great weight of living within the blackened brick walls of this restless city, and to grow unworn again, to return as the last bright spark of my prodigal heart to the bowing lupine and flickering aspen forest where my broad father, and his before him, gave his bones back to the everlasting earth.

—David J. Passey

This poem won first place in the 2010 BYU Studies poetry contest.