Born in the Wild: Baby Mammals and Their Parents

Did you know that mama pandas cradle her babies for the first several days of their life, without even putting them down to eat or drink? Did you know that baby wolves need to have their moms chew their food? Read to learn more about baby wild animals and their mothers!

Lita Judge does a fantastic job capturing the expressions of many different kinds of animals in her illustrations. The book includes fun and interesting facts about different baby animals and their parents and what it is like when they are born. Young ones can easily relate to the care and love that the baby animals need.
