Book Review
The Fintastic Fish Sitter

Tom and his friend Pradeep have a pet goldfish named Frankie, and Tom’s brother has a kitten named Fang. Fang and Frankie really don’t get along. This becomes a challenge when Tom and Pradeep ask Pradeep’s sister Sami to fish-sit for them. They give her a list of things to help her, and her biggest task it to keep Fang and Frankie away from each other. That is really hard to do, so she finally tells them that if they can’t play together, they will have to play her games. Since they can’t get along, she dresses them up as babies and pushes them in a stroller. Tom and Pradeep return and are shocked that Fang and Frankie are actually getting along!

This book is so much fun! The illustrations really help bring the book to life. There are many colors and funny pictures that keep the young readers engaged. It teaches a great lesson about how two creatures who are very different and might not like the same things can get along with one another. It also teaches kids that they can have responsibility! Sami in the book has to be creative when trying to keep Fang and Frankie apart and that can be used to teach thinking through problems and learning to how to come up with solutions. The story is fun and easy to understand, so this book would be great for preschool-aged children, but could also keep primary-aged children entertained. Overall, this is a great book with good lessons, awesome illustrations, and a fun story!
