Interpretation of Lehi’s Vision

Key Scripture 1 Nephi 11–15

Explanation Nephi, after hearing about his father’s vision of the tree of life, desired to see the same things his father saw and was granted this request. Upon seeing the tree in vision, he desired to know its interpretation. Nephi then saw the coming of the Son of God and knew that the tree of life represented the love of God. He soon learned the meaning of several other symbols in his father’s vision, as this chart illustrates. The angelic ministrant also showed Nephi episodes of world history, including periods of war, colonization, apostasy, and wickedness. Thus in light of 1 Nephi 11–15, the vision of the tree of life can be seen not only as a powerful illustration of God’s love shown through the atonement of Jesus Christ, but also as an allegory of the history of the world, as the right-hand column of the chart illustrates.

The Allegory of the Olive Tree

Key Scripture  Jacob 5

Explanation  The longest allegory in scripture is Zenos’s allegory of the olive tree. In Jacob 5:3, Zenos explains that the tame olive tree represents the house of Israel. From this interpretation, conclusions may be drawn concerning other symbols in the allegory. For example, the young branches taken from the olive tree most likely represent inhabitants of the Americas, the Jews, the lost ten tribes, and a remnant of the house of Israel; and the wild olive tree symbolizes the Gentiles and the nations of the earth. The numbers on the top half of this chart (1–6) represent the six main stages that Zenos addresses in his allegory: (1) the decaying of the top, (2) the grafting in of the wild tree, (3) the planting of young branches in other parts of the vineyard, (4) the returning of the branches to the main tree, (5) the bitter fruit burned by fire, and (6) the good fruit being gathered and stored. On the bottom half of the chart, these same stages are shown graphically, arranged clockwise around the central figure of the tame tree.
The Allegory of the Olive Tree
Jacob 5

Stage 1
Main top of tame olive tree begins to perish (v. 6) and is burned by fire (v. 9)

Stage 2
Wild olive tree branches are grafted in (v. 10) and bear good fruit (v. 17)

Stage 3
Young branches are grafted in other parts of the vineyard (vv. 8, 13)

Stage 4
Young branches are grafted back into the tame olive tree (v. 52)

Stage 5
Branches that bring forth bitter fruit are cleared (v. 65)

Stage 6
Fruit is good and vineyard is no more corrupt (v. 75)
Symbolic Elements in Zenos’s Allegory

Key Scripture  Jacob 5

Explanation  Zenos’s allegory of the tame and wild olive trees, though complicated, is one of great doctrinal and historical importance, in part because it represents the past and future history of the house of Israel. Understanding the elements in this allegory, which are grouped together and listed on this chart, can lead to added insights concerning God’s dealings with his covenant people. As this data shows, the allegory is a dynamic interchange between several trees (or parts of trees) and the master of the vineyard, his servant, and several laborers. This chart does not interpret these symbols as they appear in Jacob 5, but it shows that many elements are built into this extended allegory and thus facilitates in-depth reflection on this text.

Personal Applications of Olive Symbolism

Key Scripture  Jacob 5

Explanation  The tame olive tree in Jacob 5 may represent not only the house of Israel but also each of us personally. Listed in this chart are symbolic elements of the olive tree allegory and possible personal applications of them. While the gathering of the house of Israel is of utmost concern, personal conversion to the gospel of Jesus Christ as a member of the house of Israel may be even more important. Thus Zenos’s allegory should be read and applied in terms of individual as well as collective salvation.

To his faithful followers in the Americas, the Lord gave a commandment to “search these things diligently; for great are the words of Isaiah” (3 Nephi 23:1). That commandment implies that understanding the gospel of Jesus Christ and the words of Isaiah go hand in hand. Unfortunately, many find the writings of Isaiah hard to understand. Nephi may have been aware of this difficulty, for he addresses his latter-day audience specifically in 2 Nephi 25, giving us five keys to help facilitate comprehension of Isaiah’s words. These keys include being filled with the spirit of prophecy, living righteously in the last days, and understanding the geography and rhetorical tradition of the Jews.

King Benjamin’s Coronation of Mosiah

Key Scriptures Mosiah 1–5; 1 Kings 1:34, 39; 2 Kings 11:12, 14, 17; 23:3; 2 Chronicles 6:13

Explanation The coronation of Mosiah by King Benjamin was a grand ceremonial event that parallels the installation of kings in ancient Israel and other Near Eastern countries of antiquity, suggesting that the Nephites continued to practice Old World traditions in the Americas. Coronations were important ritual acts in the ancient Near East, including, among other things, anointing the new king, installing him in office with insignia, and presenting him to the people—elements that Benjamin’s ceremony also contained. Old Testament parallels to Mosiah’s coronation can be found in 1 Kings 1:34, 39; 2 Kings 11:12, 14, 17; 23:3; and 2 Chronicles 6:13.

Three Steps in Benjamin’s Logic on Service

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Key Scripture</th>
<th>Mosiah 2–5</th>
</tr>
</thead>
</table>

Explanation
King Benjamin, in his great discourse to the people in the land of Zarahemla, answers the question “Why should we serve?” In his speech recorded in Mosiah 2–5, he provides a logical yet somewhat surprising explanation for service. Benjamin is well known for his famous dictum on service in Mosiah 2:17. Actually, he mentions service two other times as he develops this topic more fully. This chart considers these three statements. They deal with service to God, our debt to God, and knowing God. On one level, a certain logic is embedded within each of these individual statements. On another level, the relationship between them is also logical and interdependent. If we serve men, then we only (merely) serve God. This does not win us great credit, for when we serve God, he blesses us and we are continually in his debt. Thus we have no reason to boast. Why, then, should we serve? If we are humble in our service, we will know God. Knowing the Master whom we serve is the great blessing that profits us more than anything else. This, to Benjamin, is the ultimate reason for service.

Source
Three Steps in Benjamin’s Logic on Service

1. All service is merely service to God. Therefore, serving fellow beings produces no reason to boast, unless serving God produces some reason to boast.

“When ye are in the service of your fellow beings ye are only in the service of your God” (Mosiah 2:17)

2. But no matter how much we serve God, we remain unprofitable servants. Therefore, we have no reason to boast.

“If ye should serve him with all your whole souls yet would ye be unprofitable servants” (Mosiah 2:21)

3. We do not serve God to get ahead with God or man, but to know the voice by which we are called. Therefore, service to God is valuable, but not in ways people always think.

“For how knoweth a man the master whom he has not served?” (Mosiah 5:13)
Overview of Benjamin’s Speech

Key Scripture  Mosiah 2–5

Explanation  This chart is an outline of the chiastic nature of King Benjamin’s speech to the people at the temple of Zarahemla. In it are seven major sections separated by interruptions or intervening ceremonial acts. The overall structure of the text follows an A–B–C–D–C’–B’–A’ pattern: the atonement of Jesus Christ is the crux, or center, of the speech (section D), the angel’s and Benjamin’s testimonies of the atonement are found on either side of it (sections C and C’), the behavior of the people is addressed in sections B and B’, and sections A and A’ address God and his relationship with the people. Further chiasms can be found on the sentence level, indicating that this speech was highly structured for the occasion. The evidence of chiasmus in the Book of Mormon attests to its artistry and antiquity. For a more detailed explanation of chiasmus, refer to charts 128–33.

Benjamin’s Themes Related to the Israelite New Year

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Key Scripture</th>
<th>Mosiah 2–5</th>
</tr>
</thead>

Explanation
Ancient Israelites celebrated several holy days, many elements of which have become the modern Jewish celebrations of Rosh ha-Shanah (New Year), Yom Kippur (Day of Atonement), and Sukkot (Feast of Tabernacles). These three particular celebrations took place during the early autumn season, specifically during the seventh month of the year. Because the Nephites and Mulekites originally came from Jerusalem, it is likely that they continued some of these festival traditions in the Americas. As this chart shows, King Benjamin’s speech in Mosiah 2–5 contains themes especially pertinent to the Israelite New Year, suggesting that this speech was delivered near that time of the year. Benjamin’s proclamation of his son Mosiah as king at this time is especially fitting, considering that part of the ancient Israelite New Year celebration included proclaiming or sustaining the king or high priest as an authority figure. Each element on this chart is found both in Israelite tradition and in Benjamin’s speech. The similarities between Benjamin’s speech and ancient Israelite celebrations are circumstantial evidence attesting to the historical backgrounds and divine origins of the Book of Mormon.

Benjamin’s Themes
Related to the Day of Atonement

Key Scripture  Mosiah 2–5

Explanation  The Day of Atonement is one of the most sacred holidays in Jewish culture. In preexilic Israel it included ritual atonement in the temple and a series of holy assemblies. Because Benjamin’s speech in Mosiah 2–5 and its surrounding context emphasizes several topics particularly significant to this day of religious celebration, it is possible that Benjamin gave the speech on or near the Day of Atonement. In fact, he refers to the atonement overtly seven times—a number that represented spiritual perfection and that was used in connection with rituals performed on the Day of Atonement and during other times of purification mentioned in the book of Leviticus. This holy day was also a time of forgiveness for the people of Israel who confessed their sins and repented; similarly, the people of Benjamin were spiritually reborn after they confessed and repented of their sins. Each element in this chart, listed alphabetically, is found both in Israelite texts and in Benjamin’s speech.

Benjamin’s Themes Related to the Feast of Tabernacles

Key Scripture  Mosiah 2–5

Explanation  Sukkot, or the Feast of Tabernacles, as it is currently celebrated represents the events associated with the exodus from Egypt, although it was probably originally an agricultural celebration. Although it is not possible to know exactly which parts of this celebration were observed in Jerusalem during Lehi’s lifetime, there are several significant parallels between the fully developed celebration of Sukkot and King Benjamin’s speech and the events associated with it. These elements, shared by both Israelite and Nephite observances, include a pilgrimage to the temple, sitting in tents, reading the law, coronating a king, and renewing the covenant.

Benjamin’s Themes
Related to Sabbatical and Jubilee Years

Key Scripture  Mosiah 2–5

Explanation  In addition to scheduling his speech during the season of the fall festival complex, King Benjamin may have also timed it to be given at the end of a sabbatical year, which came once every seven years. During this year, the land was not to be tilled, the yield was given to the poor, and debtors and slaves (or servants) were released from their obligations. Similarly, at the end of his speech Benjamin commands his people to “till the land,” which would make sense if the people had not been working in the fields during the sabbatical year and were preparing to resume agricultural activity. Benjamin also tells the people to settle their debts with their neighbors. These parallels are quite striking.

But this is not all. Textual evidence indicates that this may also have been a jubilee year, which occurred every seventh sabbatical year and offered a new economic beginning for the poor in the land and spiritual renewal for all. Parts of the jubilee text, found in Leviticus 25, and parts of Mosiah 2 and 4 essentially mirror each other. Topics such as settling debts, succoring the poor, depending on God, and prospering in the land, listed on this chart, are all present in both texts. Benjamin’s speech was one of monumental importance to the Nephites who still lived under the law of Moses. No wonder Mormon chose to include this speech in its entirety.
