MATERIALS ON LAND AND AGRICULTURAL PROBLEMS IN TAIWAN 1950-1980

A report on the research of Taiwan's land reform, agricultural development and economic policy in Taiwan from 1950-1980

Compiled by Dr. Tseng Hsiao
Director of China Research Institute of Land Economics

This is a first hand material on research into land reform and agricultural development in Taiwan. Together with previous publications of "Data on Chinese Land Problems in the 1930s" and "Materials on Chinese Problems in Economy, Agriculture, Lands and Water Utilization in the 1930s and 1940s, Microfiche Edition", this present work brings to a completion a whole series of study and research on land and agricultural problems in China and Taiwan. This present work seeks to answer the miraculous economic achievement of Taiwan.

The set is classified under the following categories:
1. Land Administration and Land Policy
2. Land Ownership and Land Distribution
3. Land Price and Land Taxation
4. Agricultural Monetary Systems
5. Land Utilization and Agricultural Economy
6. Urban Land Utilization and Industrial Land Utilization

The University Press of Hawaii is proud to announce a new edition of this classic comparative interpretation of Chinese and American life, to be available in paperback as well as hardcover in the fall of 1981. Francis L. K. Hsu's thought-provoking contribution to the understanding of two cultures was first published in 1953, completely revised and reissued in 1970, and updated and revised by the author for this new edition. The following is a review of the 1970 edition of this significant work:

"The author is an anthropologist who was born in China, did graduate work in England and the U.S. as well as field work in China, and has been teaching here—a perhaps unique set of competences for writing this book. Professor Hsu is not addressing himself to anything so simple as Sinic-American political relations; he has set himself the profound task of comparing two civilizations that he knows intimately. He demonstrates their radical dissimilarities and the advantages and disadvantages of each with a lucid, calm, down-to-earth approach. His language is simple and free of professional jargon, and, using these cultures to criticize each other, he illuminates both. Though Professor Hsu writes with professional exactness and scientific restraint, his personality comes through—an acute, sensitive thinker and a man of very good will." —The New Yorker

Francis L. K. Hsu is professor of anthropology and director of the Center for Cultural Studies in Anthropology at Northwestern University. As the Japanese See It
PAST AND PRESENT
compiled and edited by Michiko Y. Aoki and Margaret B. Dardess

This collection of readings, designed to illustrate common human concerns in Japanese society, will be a useful new resource in teaching Japanese culture and tradition to undergraduates in history, sociology, and anthropology courses. From these readings—all by Japanese and many of them very personal accounts—the student will see the Japanese from an unusual perspective, that of the "ordinary people" themselves.

Nearly two-thirds of the selections are translated here for the first time and are not available in English elsewhere. The readings include autobiographical material, letters, sermons, legends, and short stories; and excerpts from novels, newspaper accounts, interviews, and even an etiquette manual. The earliest selections date from the eleventh century and the most recent from 1976; the greatest number of selections depict daily life in the first half of the twentieth century and the years since World War II.

Michiko Y. Aoki has done extensive research on the social history and mythology of Japan. She completed the doctorate at Columbia University in 1970 and is the translator of Izumo Fudoki and author of Ancient Myths and Early History of Japan: A Cultural Foundation. Margaret B. Dardess completed the doctorate in modern Japanese history in 1973 at Columbia. She has taught at St. Mary College and the University of Illinois at Urbana-Champaign.

Soviet Policy in Asia—
Expansion or Accommodation?
Sung-jo Han, editor
The emergence of the Soviet Union as the foremost military power in East Asia and its expansionist policy manifested in several parts of the world since the mid-1970s raise questions which require careful examination and thorough discussion.
In this provocative volume, thirteen distinguished scholars—namely, Robert A. Scalapino, Harry Gelman, Byung-joon Ahn, Paul F. Langer, Richard H. Solomon, Dimitri K. Simes, Herbert S. Levine, Robert W. Campbell, Key-whan Kim, In-ho Lee, Chang-yoon Choi, Sung-joo Han, and Coit Dennis Blacker—analyze the goals and capabilities of the Soviet Union in its policy toward the world and Asia, and define the nature of the Soviet challenge in the area.

Syngman Rhee and American Involvement in Korea: 1942-1960
— A Personal Narrative
By Robert T. Oliver
For two decades, during the painful birth pangs of the Republic of Korea, then during the Korean War and the contorted Panmunjom Truce negotiations, at the 1954 Geneva Conference, and during the hopeful but ill-fated efforts to rehabilitate the war-ravaged nation into "the showplace of democracy in the Far East," Dr. Oliver was at once President Rhee's close friend and confidant and his confidential advisor on international relations.
It is from this background, and drawing upon the unpublished and hitherto inaccessible body of their private correspondence and intimate journals, that Dr. Oliver has composed this frank and detailed narrative.

To Dear Readers:
Known affectionately in Korea as Bomb-Mun-Sa, Panmun Book Company has been an importer of English language materials for Korean readers and an exporter of Korean language materials for overseas academicians and librarians for over two decades.
We solicit your inquiries on written materials published in Korea. Our export department handles all current books, periodicals and monographs as well as non-priced publications.
Besides, our publishing division devotes itself to subjects concerning modern and ancient Korea in the English language. The two titles listed above manifest our intention.
For any inquiries regarding your manuscript, please contact our editorial advisor, Professor Edward Wagner, Harvard University, 2 Divinity Avenue, Cambridge, Mass. 02138. Thank you!

1587, A Year of No Significance
The Ming Dynasty in Decline
Ray Huang

In 1587 nothing very special happened in China. Yet Huang’s account of the events of this year and his vivid portrayal of the lives of seven officials prominent in the court reveal much about China’s perennial inability to adapt to change, a failure which led to the decline of the Ming dynasty. Huang’s ingenious perspective is a major contribution to the understanding of Chinese history.

"There will be widespread agreement on [this] book’s impressive achievement in providing vivid biographical and institutional detail within a highly readable text."—Library Journal $19.95

The Chia-ting Loyalists
Confucian Leadership and Social Change in Seventeenth-Century China

In 1645, Chinese soldiers in the employ of the new Manchu Ch’ing government massacred 20,000 of their compatriots in the city of Chia-ting. This book is the first study in English of the massacre, the resistance movement that preceded it, and the reasons why the Ming loyalist literati who led the resistance failed to prevent this atrocity. $35.00
