Three Major Characteristics:

1. Over-all Coverage:
   Materials collected in this cumulated work cover from the Han Dynasty to the end of Ch'ing Dynasty. Not a single word on literary critical information was left out. Included in this magnificent work are 874 authors, 7528 articles, and more than 3.4 million words. It is the most perfect and unprecedented reference tool ever published.

2. Systematic Arrangement:
   Every volume in this series is divided into two parts: narrative and informative. The former describes the characteristics of critical literature, its classes and the achievements of that period. The second part arranges all collected information in a chronological order for easy reference as well for tracing the development of critical literature.

3. Convenience for Research:
   Every articles collected in this work has been punctuated and indicates the source of the article. Errors and omissions of the original articles have been clarified and corrected.
Cumulated in this series are works representing contemporary Chinese Literature of the 1930s and 1940s. Every title included in the series is being carefully selected and objectively compiled.

The series is divided into two sections: section one is comprised of 30 titles and section two is comprised of 10 titles. The former deals with research materials and the latter are creation articles of the era. The series is available either as a whole or as an individual title.

The Silence of Love
Twentieth-Century Korean Poetry
Edited and with an introduction by Peter H. Lee
ISBN 0-8248-0711-1, $17.95
ISBN 0-8248-0732-4, $8.95 paperback

"Significantly, modern (ca. 1908) Korean poetry begins with songs warning the people of the danger of foreigners and dramatizing the need for reform. A passion for freedom and an ambivalence toward the West characterize these 16 poets. The Western reader is granted insight into how his civilization has influenced Korean writing: Chagall, Martha Graham, the American Army are here. The brief introductions document the times spent in prison and suffering—the price often exacted for fulfilling the function of a poet in an enslaved society. The translations represent a masterful effort on the part of five translator/poets." —Library Journal

"This anthology does an effective, and needed, job of presenting modern Korean poetry. Wisely, editor Lee has decided against a scattershot approach of amassing snippets from several poets and has concentrated instead on good representative selections from 16 significant, individual figures. His useful introduction outlines several literary influences and historical forces that have shaped the new forms of Korean verse. Above all, he stresses the importance of language, the multiplicities of meanings for even a single word, which gives this poetry its richness—and the ambiguous and allegorical possibilities necessary for eluding the censors." —Booklist

Studies on Korea: A Scholar's Guide
Edited by Han-Kyo Kim
ISBN 0-8248-0673-5, $25.00

"By virtue of its comprehensive coverage and expert contributors, it is the major Western-language research tool to date in the field of Korean studies." —CEAL Bulletin

The primary aim of this guide is to provide basic bibliographic information, mostly on publications in English. The book's chapters correspond to academic disciplines, with separate chapters on North Korea and on Russian language materials.

With few exceptions, each chapter is the work of an individual scholar who has special competence in his field; others are the product of scholarly collaboration. Each chapter consists of an introductory essay and an extensive bibliography.

Essays on the Korean Economy
Volume III: Macroeconomic and Industrial Development in Korea
Edited by Chong Kee Park
ISBN 0-8248-0754-5, $15.00

The papers in Part I deal with the macroeconomic aspects of Korea's development process: inflation and growth, the dynamics of inflation, foreign investment, and the role of public enterprise. Part II is comprised of papers specifically addressing issues of the textile and automotive industries, industrial technology, and regional development.

Essays on the Korean Economy
Volume IV: Human Resources and Social Development in Korea
Edited by Chong Kee Park
ISBN 0-8248-0755-3, $15.00

Part I includes two papers that deal specifically with aspects of population and the quality of labor. Part II contains three papers on the health and educational aspects of Korea's social development. Part III discusses the problems of income distribution and poverty.

Korean Regional Farm Product and Income: 1910–1975
Albert Keidel, III
ISBN 0-8248-0758-8, $13.00

The author argues that there is an intangible symbiotic relationship between industrial activity and farm productivity that transcends traditional input variations. The results are important for development policy, for they imply that the degree of industrial decentralization may significantly influence the degree of rural development success.

Primary Health Care in Korea
An Approach to Evaluation
Ha Cheong Yeon
ISBN 0-8248-0763-4, $12.00

The author suggests a useful way of grouping the problems confronted in evaluating and delivering primary health care services to a majority of the rural population in Korea. Some elements in this book are appropriate for those contemplating primary health care services in other developing countries. The major evaluation findings have been derived from systematic analysis through testing hypotheses and establishing relationships among the major variables.

Soviet Policy in Asia—
Expansion or Accommodation?
Sung-jo Han, editor
The emergence of the Soviet Union as the foremost military power in East Asia and its expansionist policy manifested in several parts of the world since the mid-1970s raise questions which require careful examination and thorough discussion.

In this provocative volume, thirteen distinguished scholars—namely, Robert A. Scalapino, Harry Gelman, Byung-joon Ahn, Paul F. Langer, Richard H. Solomon, Dimitri K. Simes, Herbert S. Levine, Robert W. Campbell, Key-whan Kim, In-ho Lee, Chang-yoon Choi, Sung-joon Han, and Coit Dennis Blacker—analyze the goals and capabilities of the Soviet Union in its policy toward the world and Asia, and define the nature of the Soviet challenge in the area.

Syngman Rhee and American Involvement in Korea: 1942-1960
—A Personal Narrative
By Robert T. Oliver
For two decades, during the painful birth pangs of the Republic of Korea, then during the Korean War and the contorted Panmunjom Truce negotiations, at the 1954 Geneva Conference, and during the hopeful but ill-fated efforts to rehabilitate the war-ravaged nation into "the showplace of democracy in the Far East," Dr. Oliver was at once President Rhee's close friend and confidant and his confidential advisor on international relations.

It is from this background, and drawing upon the unpublished and hitherto inaccessible body of their private correspondence and intimate journals, that Dr. Oliver has composed this frank and detailed narrative.
518 pages, 15 x 23.5cm. $16.50

To Dear Readers:

Known affectionately in Korea as Bomb-Mun-Sa, Panmun Book Company has been an importer of English language materials for Korean readers and an exporter of Korean language materials for overseas academicians and librarians for over two decades.

We solicit your inquiries on written materials published in Korea. Our export department handles all current books, periodicals and monographs as well as non-priced publications.

Besides, our publishing division devotes itself to subjects concerning modern and ancient Korea in the English language. The two titles listed above manifest our intention.

For any inquiries regarding your manuscript, please contact our editorial advisor, Professor Edward Wagner, Harvard University, 2 Divinity Avenue, Cambridge, Mass. 02138. Thank you!

ORIGINS OF THE JAPANESE LANGUAGE
Roy Andrew Miller

This book is a nontechnical, highly readable introduction to what is known of the historical origins of the Japanese language and the current state of research on the subject. The author traces the language back to the early history of the Altaic family of languages—a history beginning in the Transcaspian steppe six or seven thousand years before the Christian era.
