Contributors

Journal of Book of Mormon Studies

Follow this and additional works at: https://scholarsarchive.byu.edu/jbms

BYU ScholarsArchive Citation

This Front Matter is brought to you for free and open access by the All Journals at BYU ScholarsArchive. It has been accepted for inclusion in Journal of Book of Mormon Studies by an authorized editor of BYU ScholarsArchive. For more information, please contact scholarsarchive@byu.edu, ellen_amatangelo@byu.edu.
Camille Fronk is an assistant professor of ancient scripture at BYU, where she received an M.A. in Near Eastern studies and a Ph.D. in family studies, with an emphasis in sociology of Palestinian families in the West Bank and Gaza Strip.

Daniel C. Peterson holds a Ph.D. in Near Eastern languages and cultures from UCLA. He is associate professor of Islamic studies and Arabic at BYU, director of the Center for the Preservation of Ancient Religious Texts (CPART), and chairman of the FARMS Board of Trustees.

Noel B. Reynolds, associate academic vice president and professor of political science at BYU, received his Ph.D. in government from Harvard University. He is a member of the FARMS Board of Trustees and is a past president of FARMS.

Wm. Revell Phillips, emeritus professor of geology at BYU and past chairman of that department, received a Ph.D. in mineralogy from the University of Utah. For 10 years he assisted Wilfred Griggs in excavations in Egypt. He has also taught at universities in the Middle East and elsewhere and directed a number of BYU Travel Study tours worldwide.

Brian Stubbs earned an M.A. in linguistics from the University of Utah and has completed course work and comprehensive exams toward a Ph.D. in Near Eastern languages. He teaches English, Spanish, and ESL at the College of Eastern Utah—San Juan Campus, where he also does research on the Ute, Hopi, and Tewa languages spoken in the region.

Paul Y. Hoskisson, associate dean of Religious Education at BYU, is an expert in Near Eastern languages. His Ph.D. from Brandeis University is in Assyriology. He is manager of the FARMS onomasticon project, which seeks to provide in-depth information on names in the Nephite scripture by drawing on scholarly studies on the Near East.