BIBLIOGRAPHICAL HISTORY AND INDICES OF THE COMPARATIVE CIVILIZATIONS REVIEW, 1-50

MICHAEL PALENCIA-ROTH
UNIVERSITY OF ILLINOIS

The Comparative Civilizations Review (CCR) was launched in Winter 1979 as volume 7, no. 3 of the Comparative Civilizations Bulletin (CCB). Up to that time the CCB had been the main organ of publication and communication for the International Society for the Comparative Study of Civilizations (ISCSC). The decision to begin publishing the journal, and to link it bibliographically to the Bulletin initially, was made at the 7th annual meeting of the Society, at the University of Wisconsin-Milwaukee, in 1978.¹ The Society’s first American president, Benjamin Nelson, had recently died, and a scholarly journal dedicated entirely to the comparative study of civilizations had been one of his fondest wishes. To date (August 2005), the Society has published 52 issues of the Review.

The following three indices – articles indexed by their authors, book reviews indexed by the book’s authors or editors, book reviews indexed by the book’s title – cover issues 1 through 50.

The editors of the CCR, from its inception to the present, are as follows. Vytautas Kavolis and Edmund Leites were its two founding co-editors, and they continued to share that responsibility through issue 22 (Spring 1990). Upon the departure of Edmund Leites, the position of the other co-editor of the journal was assumed by Wayne Bledsoe. He and Kavolis co-edited the journal from issue 23 (Fall 1990) through issue 34 (Spring 1996). Then Joseph Drew began his tenure as editor of the CCR. He edited issue 35 (Winter 1997) alone. For issues 36 (Spring 1997) and 37 (Fall 1997), he was assisted by Loyd Swenson as co-editor. Then Joseph Drew again assumed sole editorial responsibility with issue 38 (Spring 1998) though 40 (Spring 1999). With issue 41 (Fall 1999), and continuing through issue 44 (Spring 2001), he was ¹The bibliographical equivalents between the Review and the Bulletin are as follows: CCR 1 (Winter 1979) is also CCB, vol. 7, no. 3. CCR 2 (Spring 1979) is also CCB, vol. 8, no. 1. CCR 3 (Fall 1979) is also CCB, vol. 8, no. 3. CCR 4 (Spring 1980) is also CCB, vol. 9, no. 1. CCR 5 (Fall 1980) is also CCB, vol. 9, no. 3. CCR 6 (Spring 1981) is also CCB, vol. 10, no. 1. CCR 7 (Fall 1981) is also CCB, vol. 10, no. 3. CCR 8 (Spring 1982) is also CCB, vol. 11, no. 1. CCR 9 (Fall 1982) is also CCB, vol. 11, no. 2. CCR 10/11 (1983-1984) has no CCB equivalents. CCR 12 (Spring 1985) is also CCB, vol. 13, no. 1. CCR 13/14 (1985-1986) has no CCB equivalents. CCR 15 (Fall 1986) is also CCB, no. 2. CCR 16 (Spring 1987) is also CCB, vol. 15, no. 1. CCR 17 (Fall 1987) is also CCB, vol. 15, no. 2. CCR 18 (Spring 1988) is also CCB, vol. 16, no. 1. From CCR 19 (Fall 1988) to the present, there are no CCB equivalents as the two publications have become completely independent of one another.

assisted by Elpidio Laguna-Díaz as co-editor. From issue 46 (Spring 2002) through the last issue indexed here, no. 50 (Spring 2004), the CCR has been the principal responsibility of both Joseph Drew and Laina Farhat-Holzman.

A number of special issues of the CCR have been organized and edited by guest editors. Vytautas Kavolis, Edmund Leites, Marie Coleman Nelson and E.V. Walter guest-edited CCR 8 (Spring 1982), a memorial issue in honor of Benjamin Nelson entitled Sociology and Psychoanalysis in Comparative Civilizational Perspective: A Memorial for Benjamin Nelson. Nelson was again memorialized in CCR 10/11 (1983-1984) with a double issue that was also co-published as a separate book (Humanities Press, 1985) entitled Civilizations East and West: A Memorial Volume for Benjamin Nelson. This item was edited by E.V. Walter (as the principal editor), along with Vytautas Kavolis, Edmund Leites, and Marie Coleman Nelson. CCR 12 (Spring 1985), a special Latin American issue, was guest-edited by Michael Palencia-Roth. CCR 13/14 (1985-1986) appeared both as a double issue and as a book (with the ISCSC as publisher, 1985); it was entitled As Others See Us: Mutual Perceptions East and West. Its editors were Bernard Lewis, Edmund Leites and Margaret Case. The next special issue was no. 30 (Spring 1994), on the subject of “Civilizations and World Systems,” guest-edited by Stephen K. Sanderson. The only other special issue of the first 50 was no. 45 (Fall 2001), guest-edited by Michael Palencia-Roth and entitled The Janus Perspective in Comparative Civilizations.

Up through issue 18 (Spring 1988), book reviews appeared in the CCR only occasionally, and editing them was the responsibility of the principal editors. Beginning with issue 19 and continuing to the present, David Wilkinson has been responsible for the book review section, and these reviews have been a regular feature of the Review since Fall 1988.

Anomalies: There are two different issues dated Fall 1987. One is issue 16 and the other is issue 17. With no. 18 (Spring 1988), the seasonal notation is again correct, and the CCR has continued to be published on a Fall-Spring timetable. There have been only two exceptions to the Fall-Spring timetable. One is the very first issue (dated Winter 1979). The other is issue 35, published in Winter 1997. The time from issue 34 to 35 was one of transition for the Review, for no. 34 was the last one to be co-edited by Vytautas Kavolis and Wayne Bledsoe, and no. 35 was the first one to be edited by Joseph Drew.
