Announcements

Columbia University

Zhijia Shen

Follow this and additional works at: https://scholarsarchive.byu.edu/jeal

BYU ScholarsArchive Citation
Available at: https://scholarsarchive.byu.edu/jeal/vol2002/iss126/10

This Article is brought to you for free and open access by the Journals at BYU ScholarsArchive. It has been accepted for inclusion in Journal of East Asian Libraries by an authorized editor of BYU ScholarsArchive. For more information, please contact scholarsarchive@byu.edu, ellen_amatangelo@byu.edu.
ANNOUNCEMENTS

Columbia University’s C. V. Starr East Asian Library has contracted the National Library of China to convert the manual cataloging records and Latin transliteration of 104 titles in the Columbia collections that are in Mongol, Manchu, XiXia nuzhen, and Miao, Chinese minority languages. Because the records are entered into both RLIN and CLIO, the materials are made accessible both to our own users at Columbia University and to scholars worldwide.

Through the cataloging and conversion process the titles will have full access by title, author, and subject. Prior to this agreement, the titles were accessible only through a supplied Chinese title or in the original language.

The arrangement combines the language and subject expertise available through the NLC with our own ability to adapt the cataloging to US cataloging standards (e.g., by using correct forms of names, adding Library of Congress subject headings in English). The project managers are Mr. Charles Wu, Head of Technical Services, C. V. Starr East Asian Library, and Ms. Shen Xiaoting, Associate Librarian, Department of Rare Books and Special Collections at the National Library of China.

The minority-language books, 814 volumes in 104 titles, were purchased by the Columbia Libraries in the early 1940s and date from the late Qing dynasty through early Min Guo (late 19th to early 20th centuries). Mongol was the language of the rulers of the Yuan dynasty (1260-1368), and Manchu the language of the rulers of the Qing dynasty (1644-1912). As library director Dr. Amy V. Heinrich noted, “This project begins a cooperation that will not only increase access to valuable resources that have been relatively inaccessible, but with it, Columbia University Libraries expands the scope of cooperative cataloging to new methods and new partners internationally.”

The C. V. Starr East Asian Library is one of the major collections for the study of East Asia in the United States, with over 700,000 volumes of Chinese, Japanese, Korean, Tibetan, and Western language materials, with some holdings in Mongol and Manchu, and over 5,000 periodical titles. The collection, established in 1902, is particularly strong in Chinese history, literature, and growing in the social sciences; Japanese literature, history, and religion, particularly Buddhism; and Korean history. The library’s web site is located at http://www.columbia.edu/cu/lweb/indiv/starr/.

For information contact: Mr. Charles Wu
Head of Technical Services,
C. V. Starr East Asian Library
(212) 854-2579

(From a Press release by Columbia University)
Gateway Service Center of Chinese Academic Journal Publications

The East Asian Library at the University of Pittsburgh University Library System announces the continuation of its successful Chinese document delivery service into its fourth year. Originally funded by a National Leadership Grant awarded by the Institute of Museum and Library Services, an independent federal agency founded in 1996 to "foster leadership, innovation, and lifetime learning by supporting the nation’s museums and libraries," for the past three years the Center has served scholars and library patrons across the country by delivering full-text journal publications directly from collections and libraries in China. The service has won immensely positive responses from its users and has proven to be a valuable service critical to the research of many scholars of Chinese studies.

The Gateway Service Center welcomes use of its services. Please send requests to the Center using the online request form found at http://www.library.pitt.edu/gateway/request.htm. We appreciate feedback about our services. Please send us your comments, suggestions, and questions using the feedback form (http://www.library.pitt.edu/gateway/feedback.htm). We look forward to hearing from you and to continuing to serve your research and information needs.

(Zhijia Shen, University of Pittsburgh)