

1-1-2011

"And gladly wolde he lerne and gladly teche"

Marilyn Bushman-Carlton

Follow this and additional works at: <https://scholarsarchive.byu.edu/byusq>

Recommended Citation

Bushman-Carlton, Marilyn (2011) ""And gladly wolde he lerne and gladly teche", BYU Studies Quarterly: Vol. 50 : Iss. 1 , Article 8.
Available at: <https://scholarsarchive.byu.edu/byusq/vol50/iss1/8>

This Poetry is brought to you for free and open access by the All Journals at BYU ScholarsArchive. It has been accepted for inclusion in BYU Studies Quarterly by an authorized editor of BYU ScholarsArchive. For more information, please contact scholarsarchive@byu.edu.

And gladly wolde he lerne and gladly teche

—Chaucer

From Holsteins I learned to recycle rinds and gristle, and to chew meticulously.

From my father, the relationship of visions and dirt. From my mother I learned how to polish.

From the Great Salt Lake I learned that faith
by itself can't keep you afloat.

From reading aloud in junior high, how to pronounce debris, Yosemite, Potomac.

From reading a news release, that you never know someone that well.

From marriage, that you need to trust anyway.
From Shirley McClain, that small eyes can cha cha. From Andy Warhol, to love and embrace boring things.

From motherhood, to pinch the nose and jump
even though you never learned to swim.

From literature, to live with uncertainty.
From dangling, that rungs of doubt have traction.

—Marilyn Bushman-Carlton